

Problem Employee? A good performer but doesn't get along with the team?

Our newest offering, this self-paced Human Relations Course will improve your employee's sensitivity and empathy with coworkers.

Something we're all aware of but don't spend time focusing on: how to develop and improve our human relationships.

Through reflection and application of real-life cases, each participant will experience human relations skills aimed at improving relationships in both business and personal life.

The Human Relations Course benefit: Work at your own pace...

While working at your own pace using a combination of reading, videos, case studies and reflective assignments, you explore proven ways to work better with others.

FACT: The better you work with people the more successful you are in your personal and professional lives. This course is all about relationships.

It may be one of the few courses where you use what you learn and apply it to both your business AND personal life.

A very effective and affordable option, this HR Training course can be used in conjunction with a performance improvement plan or as a coaching tool.

The Human Relations course is offered on the myQuest platform, an action-based learning platform that delivers real, engaged learning. <https://quest.hrsmartstart.com/>

For more information about enrolling, Contact Us today and learn how you can improve human relationships for you and/or your employees.

